

ESSAYS ON THE INTELLECTUAL POWERS OF MAN
By Thomas Reid

CONTENTS

PREFACE..... 1

ESSAY 1: Preliminary

Chapter 1: Explaining the meanings of some words..... 4
Chapter 2: Principles that I take for granted 16
Chapter 3: Hypotheses 21
Chapter 4: Analogy 24
Chapter 5: The right way to get knowledge of the operations of the mind 26
Chapter 6: The difficulty of attending to the operations of our own minds 28
Chapter 7: Classifying the powers of the mind 31
Chapter 8: Social operations of mind 33

ESSAY 2: The powers we have by means of our external senses

Chapter 1: The organs of sense..... 36
Chapter 2: The impressions on the organs, nerves, and brain 38
Chapter 3: Hypotheses concerning the nerves and brain 39
Chapter 4: Three false inferences from impressions on the organs etc. 44
Chapter 5: Perception 49
Chapter 6: What it is to account for a phenomenon in nature 51
Chapter 7: What Malebranche have believed about the perception of external objects 53
Chapter 8: The ‘common theory’, and the views of the Aristotelians and of Descartes 58
Chapter 9: Locke’s views 67
Chapter 10: Berkeley’s views 71
Chapter 11: Berkeley’s view about the nature of ideas 76
Chapter 12: Hume’s views 81
Chapter 13: Arnauld’s views 83
Chapter 14: Thoughts about the common theory of ideas 85
Chapter 15: Leibniz’s system 94
Chapter 16: Sensation..... 95
Chapter 17: Objects of perception, starting with primary and secondary qualities 99
Chapter 18: Other objects of perception 105
Chapter 19: Matter and space 108
Chapter 20: The evidence of the senses, and belief in general 113
Chapter 21: Improving the senses 118
Chapter 22: The deceptiveness of the senses 121

ESSAY 3: Memory

Chapter 1: Obvious and certain truths about memory.....	127
Chapter 2: Memory is an original faculty.....	128
Chapter 3: Duration.....	130
Chapter 4: Identity.....	132
Chapter 5: Locke's account of the origin of our ideas, especially the idea of duration.....	136
Chapter 6: Locke's account of our personal identity	140
Chapter 7: Theories about memory.....	143

ESSAY 4: Conception

Chapter 1: Conception (or simple apprehension) in general.....	153
Chapter 2: Theories about conception.....	161
Chapter 3: Four mistakes about conception.....	169
Chapter 4: The train of thought in the mind.....	174

ESSAY 5: Abstraction

Chapter 1: General words.....	183
Chapter 2: General conceptions	187
Chapter 3: General conceptions formed by analysing objects.....	190
Chapter 4: General conceptions formed by combination.....	194
Chapter 5: Remarks on the names that are given to our general notions	198
Chapter 6: Opinions of philosophers about universals.....	200

ESSAY 6: Judgment

Chapter 1: Judgment in general.....	210
Chapter 2: Common sense	221
Chapter 3: The views about judgment of Locke and other philosophers	225
Chapter 4: First principles in general.....	234
Chapter 5: The first principles of contingent truths.....	243
Chapter 6: The first principles of necessary truths	255
Chapter 7: Ancient and modern opinions about first principles	266
Chapter 8: Prejudices, the cause of error.....	268

ESSAY 7: Reasoning

Chapter 1: Reasoning in general, and demonstration	276
Chapter 2: Can morality be demonstrated?.....	280
Chapter 3: Probable reasoning	284
Chapter 4: Hume's scepticism with regard to reason.....	288

ESSAY 8: Taste(not included in this version)

Chapter 1: Taste in general
Chapter 2: The objects of taste, starting with novelty
Chapter 3: Grandeur
Chapter 4: Beauty	